SINGLE STREETS, WHERE DIVERSITY MEETS

Singapore is a melting pot of culture, thanks to the diversity of race and religions that live harmoniously alongside each other. One example of such diversity is Telok Ayer Street. Along this 350m long stretch lies a Mosque, a shrine, a temple and a Methodist Church. Singapore celebrates a number of cultural and religious festivals throughout the year.

STREETS OF RELIGIOUS HARMONY

BENCOOLEN MOSQUE

SRI KRISHNAN TEMPLE

CATHEDRAL OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD

CHURCH OF SAINTS PETER AND PAUL

KUM YAN METHODIST CHURCH

KWAN IM THONG HOOD CHO TEMPLE

MAGHAIN ABOTH SYNAGOGUE

Queen, Waterloo and Bencoolen streets have one of the highest concentrations of diverse religious institutions in Singapore. In such close proximity and within walking distance of one another, the seven religious institutions coexist in harmony - a true reflection of the importance of religious and racial harmony in multicultural urban Singapore.

DID YOU KNOW?

Haji Muhammad Salleh Mosque

The mosque's location is a stark contrast to the busy Central Business District. At the top of Mount Palmer sits the tomb of Habib Nuh, a descendent of Prophet Muhammad (pbuh).

Petempatan Melayu Sembawang Mosque

Hidden from the main road lies one of the last Malay kampong (village) mosque in Singapore. The mosque's entrance is sheltered by a noticeably tall rubber tree in what used to be rubber plantations within the Malay settlement.

GOOD TO KNOW

CHINGAY PARADE

A Uniquely Singaporean tradition, the Chingay Parade is an annual event that celebrates Singapore's multicultural ethnicity. From dazzling floats to extravagant displays, the Chingay Parade beautifully showcases the cultural mix that truly makes Singapore what it is. The Chingay Parade is traditionally celebrated on the second week of the Lunar New Year by Singaporeans of all ethnicities.

RACIAL HARMONY DAY

Mural At Keong Saik Rd, Tiong Bahru

Singapore commemorates Racial Harmony Day on 21 July every year to mark strong ties among Singaporeans of different communities and for them to get together and celebrate diversity.

Chinese New Year

Also known as Lunar New Year, it is customarily a time to honour both traditional deities and familial ancestors. Visit Chinatown to witness the lights and streets adorned in red.

Thaipusam

An annual festival celebrated by Hindu devotees in Singapore. Witness large and colourful chariot processions when devotees make their way from Tank Road to Keong Saik Road.

Vesak Day

Get a glimpse of candlelight processions and the illumination of the Buddha statue at Kong Meng San Phor Kark See Monastery.

Hari Raya Aidilfitri

Observed after Ramadan, it is a joyous celebration of forgiveness, visiting family and feasting! Geylang Serai offers the sights and sounds that are most festive to this mood.

Deepavali

The streets of Little India are lit up with oil lamps, extravagant statues and a beautiful array of colours on the days leading up to the Hindu celebration of good over evil.

Hari Raya Haji

A festival celebrating compassion, sharing wealth and remembering blessings. A sheep, goat, cow or lamb is typically sacrificed then distributed to families and the needy.

Mid-Autumn Festival

Traditionally a celebration at the end of the Autumn Harvest, the Mid-Autumn Festival sees large displays of lanterns and mooncakes, celebrating the moon at its brightest and fullest.

Christmas Day

There may not be snow in Singapore but the Christmas Wonderland at Gardens by the Bay and festive lights along Orchard Road is a sign that the festive season is around the corner.

STYLE PICKS WITH

GOOD TO KNOW

SMITH MARINE FLOATING RESTAURANT
@smithmarine

Singapore's first Halal floating restaurant, this modern kelong will tick two items off your list: fun activity and mealtime. Dine on the freshest fish, caught by your own hand. Uniquely located between Pulau Ubin and Changi Point ferry terminal, book your return ferry tickets in advanced.

DESSERTS GALORE

From the artisanal to the distinctly local, you will find a wide variety of sugary goodies to give you that mid-day energy boost. Whether you love waffles and ice cream, freshly baked pastries or boba, there's something in here for every sweet tooth.

Milk Singapore
@milk.singapore
📍 Kampong Gelam

Boba fans, get a taste of Singapore with Milk's Ice Kacang Bubble Tea. They also offer crispy, fluffy honeycomb Waffles – a delightful dessert for any sweet-tooth.

Rumi Rooftop Bar
@rumithepoetscup
📍 Kampong Gelam

Quench your thirst with Rumi's masterfully crafted Artisanal Coffee and mocktail selection. They have been a local favourite for years.

Wanderlost Lounge
@wanderlostlounge

Go for the mocktails, stay for the ambience. This enchanting book-themed non-alcoholic bar is great for a chill night out with friends. Must-try: The Little Prince mocktail.

La Fez Cafe & Bakery
@wearelafez

One of their bestsellers, this almond tart is fruity, nutty and creamy all rolled into one, topped with Chantilly cream and fresh figs.

100labs
@weare100labs
📍 Kampong Gelam

Some say they have one of the best Halal Buttermilk Waffles in town. Pair it with one of their signature gelato and you might rethink sharing this dessert.

Motherdough Bakery
@motherdoughbakery
📍 Kampong Gelam

The snaking lines speak volumes. This bakery is loved by locals, serving up handcrafted, artisanal baked good like their Double Baked Almond Croissant.

Tauhuay.SG
@tauhuaysg

Sweet and silky, tauhuay is the perfect dessert for a hot and lazy afternoon about town. TSG Gems brings it up a notch with Singapore-esque toppings like Taro balls and Cincau.

A TASTE OF GEYLANG SERAI

Home to one of Singapore's oldest Malay settlements, Geylang Serai is one of the largest and busiest wet markets. It houses a Halal food court on the second floor and is near to Haig Road Food Centre and Joo Chiat Complex.

Bubur Kampung
@sajianmakdara

Comfort food. A warm meal for any time of day. The sambal belacan (spicy chilli with shrimp paste) is really the star of the dish here, raising the wholesome bubur (congee) to a whole new level.

Traditional Haig Road Putu Piring
@haigroadputupiring

I absolutely love their putu piring (steamed rice flour snack with palm sugar)! The place was featured on the Netflix show, Street Food Asia, and I'm so glad it was. An underrated street food dish for tourists visiting Singapore.

Yi Zun Noodle
@yizunnoodle

Another place I absolutely love! Other than their renowned hand-pulled beef noodles, their mutton skewers are a must-try, they do it really well. I also love how so many authentic Halal Chinese food places have been making a name for themselves in the Singapore food scene in recent years.

Kentang Ball
Rosy & Nora

"The fondest memories I have of my family are those surrounding the kitchen or the dinner table – and I want that for my son as well"

A Taste Of Geylang Serai with Shamsydar Ani
@sharmeee

Shamsydar Ani was dubbed the 'Sambal Queen' for her flair in mixing spices during her time as a finalist in Masterchef SG season 1. This bubbly mother of one is a true blue foodie, splitting her time between food photography & writing, recipe development, and maintaining an active social media presence. She also wrote a cookbook titled Spices & Lime: Recipes from a Modern Southeast Asian Kitchen.

The Original Vadai
@theoriginalvadai

Karipap
@shazah_confectionary

If you're looking for Indian-style Karipap in the area, Sha Zah's is my top pick. The potato and meat in the Karipap are infused with an aromatic blend of spices, and are enclosed in a pleasantly light and flaky pastry.
